"Caesar and Cleopatra" Is in Rehearsal

The Forest Theater will, it is said, have the distinction of offering "Caesar and Cleopatra" with fewer enforced cuts or other departures from the original than any production of the play yet staged, thanks to the opportunities for bold stage direction offered by our outdoor playhouse.

A hundred and [illegible] by fifty-two people, will be enacted. Nearly everyone will be playing two or three parts. Among the longer roles, sustained throughout the play, are Julius Caesar, to be played by Frederick R. Bechdolt, old-timer of Carmel and veteran of the Forest Theater; Ftatateeta, the grim and tragic character of the nurse of the sixteen-year-old Cleopatra, to be portrayed by Geane Hanson; Britannus, J. D. Pullen; Theodotus, Owen White; the Persian Recruit, Evan R. Mosher, who will also do several other interesting "bits"; Belzanor, William T. Kibbler; Achilles, Dr. Alfred E. Burton. There are but three other feminine roles—Cleopatra and her maids of honor, Charmian and Iras. With an overplus of good material to choose from, there has been no final selection in these instances. A number of male roles are likewise still open, definite selection being delayed until after this week's rehearsals.

A most welcome addition to the producing staff is Miss Blanche Tormie, who has accepted the onerous duty of mistress of the wardrobe. With something over a hundred costumes to care for, and the supervision of countless alterations on her hands, Miss Tolmie, whose excellent work in "The Countess Cathleen" last summer will be long remembered, deserves the thanks of every well wisher of the Forest Theater.

Another strong addition to the staff was made this week in the person of Arthur Bragg, who, as master of properties, will have the handling, and, in many cases, the making of the numerous "props" used in the production, including scores of spears, swords and shields, fans, torches, banquet vessels and the like.

With Jack Williamson at the new switchboard, and David Alberto and Lewis Josselyn assisting, and with L. E. Gottfried as chief stage mechanician, and Don Hale, Togo Fisher, and several others assisting, this year's stage "crew" is well up to the demands made by Shaw's big play.

Cornelius Botke's beautiful poster is in the hands of the lithographers and will soon be out. Joseph Mora's huge Sphinx, where Caesar and Cleopatra meet for the first time under the Egyptian moon, is well along, and promises to be another sensation for the Forest Theater.

In a few days blocks of tickets will be sent to San Francisco, Berkeley, San Jose and other cities, and Carmel people are again urged to secure seats while they have a wide selection. On sale at Cabbages and Kings, Ltd.

Globe-Trotter Returns

Mrs. Rose J. DeYoe arrived Monday evening from everywhere. She reports a wonderful trip, but is glad to be home and with her friends.

MONTEREY UNION HIGH SCHOOL

MONTEREY, CAL.

June 5, 1922.

Mr. Taxpayer:

On the question of issuing bonds to meet the costs of enlarging and improving the present Monterey Union High School building. The proposed improvements are badly needed, in fact a necessity, if the next freshman class is to be admitted.

There is a graduating class of fifty-nine coming from the Monterey Grammar School, and the other schools in the district have proportionately large graduating classes. A large percentage of these plan to take a high school course, and they cannot be accommodated in the present building.

The School Board which advocates this bond issue is composed of the following members: The chairman, Carmel Martin, of the law firm of Hudson, Martin & Jorgensen; Wm. T. Kibbler of Carmel and L. D. Lacey of Monterey, both retired capitalists and public-spirited citizens; Judge Rohrback of Pajaro, Justice of the Peace and rancher; and John Scudder, Jr., of Moss Landing, Manager of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company.

These men are all representative citizens and large taxpayers. Knowing the need of the proposed improvements, they have decided a bond issue to be a safer and more expedient way to meet the required expense than a direct tax for several years, which necessarily would be very heavy.

The assessed valuation of Monterey Union High School district is about eleven million dollars. The present high school tax rate is 45c on the hundred dollars. The bonds, which are of $1000 denomination, are to be redeemable, five each year, and paying five per cent. They will make an average increase in the tax rate of 6.5c, for the present assessed value. As an increase in valuation to twenty million dollars within the next twenty years is a safe prediction, the tax rate will be still lower.

Think it over yourself and see if you do not arrive at the same conclusion.

It is true that the High School building is to be in Monterey, but other sections will be cared for. The Prunedale section students will have their transportation and tuition paid to Salinas High School, and the Pajaro and Aromas students to Watsonville.

It is too far to have them come to Monterey High School, but nevertheless they have the advantages of these good schools, at a lower tax rate than if they were in those school districts. If they had their own high school, they could not afford to furnish equipment which would compare with that now offered. Therefore they are better off staying in this district and getting the advantages of those schools.

The Student Body of Monterey Union High School unanimously supports the decision of the School Board on the question of issuing these bonds, and hopes that you believe in it also.

[Signed] THEODORE CRILEY, President.
[Signed] THELMA BRANT, Secretary.

Remember that the election is on June 21, from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Tell your friends and neighbors also to be sure and vote YES.

A Slippery Incident

Great excitement was caused on "Main Street" Tuesday morning when Gus Englund attempted to ride Marian Daniels' fiery steed. The marshal mounted with his usual debonair manner; the horse found that it was no spring zephyr he was carrying, so he kicked up his heels, and Gus found a soft spot atop of one of Ocean avenue's Alpine peaks.

Later, he gave us the real low down of the incident. It was that the saddle slipped. He swears that it was not his foot.

Moves to Better Quarters

Next Sunday will be "movin' day" for Mrs. W. C. Wingate. The lonely men who have to "bach" know her as the Lady of the Good Eats; the women who tire of routine cooking esteem her.

Mrs. Wingate presides over the Slip In Lunch Room and she is moving to larger and pleasanter quarters across from her present location. All who know of her excellent home cooking will be glad to continue their patronage at the new place.

Morgan Cancels Offer to City of New Quarters

The regular monthly meeting of the city board of trustees was held [illegible] tees Kibbler and Reardon answering the roll-call.

The Forest Theater petitioned for extra police help for July 1, 3 and 4. The marshal was deputized to secure [illegible]

A communication was read from T. Morgan, withdrawing the offer of quarters in the new postoffice building, and Phil Wilson submitted plans for extra accommodations in the building now occupied by the city. The plans were discussed and referred to a committee for investigation.

Perry L. McDonald petitioned the board for the privilege of blowing a steam whistle at 12 o'clock noon, the same to be made musical as a fairy chime—a cross between the sighing of the trees in a December gale and the sobbing sound of the sea—but Perry Newberry arose to the occasion and in impassioned accents plead for the peace and content of that portion of Carmel who had fled from whistles and maddening crowds and trolley cars. "Why keep account of time in Carmel?" said Perry. "People come here to get away from it." Petition denied.

No bids having come in for local improvement bonds, a resolution was passed to enter into agreement with contractor Ruthven, whereby he might accept said bonds as part payment for the road work.

The board adjourned to Tuesday, June 20th.

Open New Addition North End of Town

The work of the DeYoes on road construction for their addition adjacent to the new subdivision, Carmel Woode, is certainly deserving of mention. The roads are to follow the natural contour of the hill; they are to be twenty five feet wide, of gravel with a surface of decomposed rock similar to the Pebble Beach roads, and are to cost $2700.

The actual work is being done by the Del Monte Properties Co., and the development is to be in keeping with the scheme of road building which they are following in their subdivision, Carmel Woods.

The new state highway is to run along one side of the DeYoe property and the work of clearing and surveying has been actively begun. Every effort is being made to save the trees. Clumps of oaks and pines that are in the streets are to be left and the roads built to wind around them. Anyone going there for the first time is struck with the wild beauty of the place. It is like being in a primitive wilderness far from civilization.

Notable Party Arrives

Arthur B. Mavity, Pacific Coast representative of the Henry Holt Co., Mrs. Mavity, book reviewer and literary critic for the San Francisco Chronicle, accompanied by their small daughter Nancy, Mrs. A. A. Barr, and Miss Gwendolen Gray Perry, motored down from Oakland to spend Decoration Day with Miss Grace Hamilton. Miss Perry will remain throughout the summer with Miss Hamilton.

Purely Personal Paragraphs

Janie Johnston is spending the week at her home in San Jose.

Mrs. Frederick Kett and daughter have come to Carmel for the summer.

Ernest Hemming drove up from Madera last week and was here for two days.

Miss Laura Diersseu's mother is with her. Mrs. Diersseu has been ill, but is rapidly recovering.

Miss Marian Tannhauser and Miss Allison of Berkeley have taken the Williamson cottage for the summer.

The Curtis house in the south end [illegible] rented for a year.

Maynard Curtis has left for Boston.

Mrs. A. Gilbert and friend, Mrs. L. Rosenkritz, have left Carmel for their homes in Mill Valley. While here they occupied the "Pine Log".

Margaret Wallace [illegible] son Kevin have returned from a visit to Fair Oaks, where they have been staying with Mr. Wallace's mother.

Col. George S. Terry is a guest of Hotel Whitcomb, San Francisco, while attending the Shriners' conclave being held there this week.

Mrs. S. M. Marks of Cloyne Court, Berkeley, has taken the Mower home for the month of June. Mrs. Marks is a friend of Mrs. Duncan McDuffie.

Mrs. E. B. Randall spent some time last week at Palo Colorado. Her husband has recently joined her and they expect to remain several days longer.

Mrs. F. S. Rice and daughter Alice, from Springfield, Ohio, former property owners here, are once more in Carmel, this time for a three months' vacation.

Mrs. S. B. Hunkins of Fresno, mother of Miss Mossie Hunkins, arrived about the first of the month. She expects to make her home here indefinitely.

Kenneth B. Robertson, wife and mother spent the week end at Pine Inn. They find our cool sea breezes restful after the more tropic climate of their home city—Coalinga.

Arthur Haevenrich, his mother and grandaughter, were here from Madera last week. They have rented a cottage and will return the end of this month for a three months' stay.

Friends of Katharine Cooke are glad to know that she is recovering from an attack of quinsy. She is able to be out, but is still under doctor's orders and will be obliged to take a rest cure of several months.

Art Collectors Visit Carmel

Interesting visitors to Carmel last week were Edward Frank Squadrille and Finn Haakon Frolich, art collectors. Mr. Squadrille has just completed the building of an art gallery in Hollywood, said to be the largest gallery in the United States. Through Mr. Squadrille's European connections and from his museum in Rome, he is able to display many of the works of the old Masters as well as those of our more recent American artists.

The sale of the paintings in his gallery in Hollywood allows twenty-five per cent of the purchase price to be devoted to a fund for prizes awarded twice a year. Mr. Squadrille is getting in touch of many of our local artists to furnish an exhibit for his gallery. As a restorer of paintings Mr. Squadrille enjoys rather a rare distinction. He was very much interested in the pictures in our Mission Carmelo and regretted the fact that they are so fast going to decay.

Squadrille was the official photographer for the American Commission to the Peace conference and speaks with more pride of the photograph of the signing of the peace treaty which he holds than of his art treasures in Rome and Hollywood.

Finn Haakon Frolich is a Norwegian by birth, a student of the Beaux Arts in Paris, a medalist in the Paris Exposition of 1900, and the director of sculpture in the Alaska-Yukon Exposition in Seattle. He was fortunate enough to be able to study with D. C. French and Augustus St.Gaudens, two of our greatest American artists. He is preeminently a sculptor and is engaged at present in that line of work in the South.

He spent some time while in Carmel renewing old associations with Joseph J. Mora and David Alberto, both of whom are old friends of his.

NOT THE PHILOSOPHER'S IDEA

Small Girl Gave Peculiar Twist to Proverb That Some of Us May Remember.

A Philadelphia school teacher was quoting to her pupils the sayings of various wise men touching the value of silence on certain occasions, when she gave them the proverb to the effect that we have one mouth and two ears, in order that we may listen twice as much as we speak.

A day or so after the instruction, the teacher, to see how well the lesson had been learned, asked a girl pupil the question, as above.

Little Lulu had forgotten the philosopher's maxim; but the question did not seem a difficult one to answer.

"Because," she said, "we should not have room in our face for two mouths, and we should look too crooked if we had only one ear."

"No, Lulu," said the teacher, "that is not the reason. Perhaps Marie can tell us."

"Yessum," said Marie, "it's that way so we can let what we hear go in at one ear and out at the other!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Great Britain Bars Feathers.

No more feathers can enter Great Britain now that the plumage prohibition bill is in force. Women who have feathers in their hats are the envy of their friends and osprey feathers, bird of paradise plumes, and all kinds of fans will shortly be worth their weight in five-pound notes. African ostriches and eider ducks are the only exceptions to the law, as the plumage of both species can be obtained without cruelty while they are moulting. The new law does not apply to passengers coming into the country with feathers as part of their personal apparel. Birds of paradise recently have been killed at the rate of 30,000 a year in full breeding plumage, and as many as 300,000 albatrosses were killed in one raid in the Pacific. Florida has been swept clean of egrets, whole colonies of these birds having been butchered at the breeding season to obtain the feathers sometimes known as "ospreys."

LEGITIMATE AND TIMELY EXPANSION

It would be hard to exaggerate the importance of the announcement made in this issue by the Del Monte Properties Company. Put briefly, it means that Carmel by the Sea is about to have a [illegible] subdivision of twenty-five acres added to its city limits. Carmel Woods, as the new subdivision is called, will give our city elbow room, and remove the cramps and [illegible] pains of [illegible].

It is significant that most of the building now going on in Carmel takes the form of replacements. Small structures, many of them hastily and inadequately built, are giving way before solid, commodious and artistic homes. Carmelites who once built for the immediate present are now rebuilding for the future. There have been few real estate investors here—those who own property hold on to it and improve it to the measure of its rapidly increasing value.

The result is that newcomers have not been able to buy, much as they desire to do so. The summer vacation influx into Carmel-by-the-Sea brings scores of families who succumb to the charm of our city, resolve to settle here, yet seek in vain for permanent homes. There has not been land enough to go round. Our home-sites are one hundred per cent in private ownership.

Now comes the announcement that will remedy this condition. Undoubtedly the twenty-five acres about to be placed in the market will be subdivided in lot-sizes suiting the taste and the purse of those who are anxious to buy here.

The announcement embodies certain statements that are sure to impress our citizens. It is evident that the manager of the subdivision understands the thought of this community and is in sympathy with our aims. He has consulted the City Trustees and the City Planning Commission to the end that the plans for Carmel Woods may be in harmony with Carmel ideals. The result should be such a healthy, steady, untroubled flow of Carmel activities and Carmel life over these twenty-five new acres that Carmel will appear to absorb them naturally, almost automatically. Carmel Woods will not be an appendage to Carmel—it will become an integral part of us.

All Carmelites know the undulating expanse richly clothed in pines and oaks that is about to be opened up. In a community such as ours, where taste is highly developed, there is no difficulty in visualizing what Carmel Woods is going to be. The mind's eye easily envisages the picture, and it is one to kindle the imagination.

But while our imaginations are busy, let us also use our heads. To a very appreciable extent we can determine the character of those who shall live among us as residents in the new subdivision. If we interest our friends, we shall be sure of an accession of families whose ideals are our ideals, and whose sympathies and tastes will insure the continued growth of Carmel-by-the-Sea along the lines that have made us what we are.

SEND HIM BACK TO WASHINGTON

Senator Hiram W. Johnson, with his failings, to which all flesh is heir, has ever been a four-square fighter, who stood with bared fists against anything he deemed dangerous or obnoxious. That is more than can be said for those hedging, trimming, side-stepping individuals who have opposed him in this state. Johnson has been conscientious, and, no matter how much we may disagree with him, let us return to the Senate a man we know to be "square".

DO NOT NEGLECT YOUR DUTY

It is a notorious fact that the evils of politics, and, consequently the failure of government to measure up to high standards, is due almost wholly to the unfailing presence of selfish and vicious interests at the ballot box, and the unfailing absence of a large percentage of the good citizenship. Register now, so you can do your duty next fall.

SPORTING

Reds and Blues Still At It

Another Red victory resulted when the two teams of boys from Sunset School met Friday in the fifth game of their series. The score was 9 to 7. The series now stands Reds 4, Blues 1.

In Friday's game the Blues got away in the lead. The Reds tied it at four apiece in the fourth and went ahead with two more runs in the fifth after the Blues had added one tally to their own total in that frame. The seventh was fatal for the Blues, three Red runners registering.

Bill Heron, Red center fielder, and Teaby Nichols, behind the bat for the Blues, were the stars of their teams. Tirso Marques' triple, which went for nothing when he was out trying to stretch it into a home run, was the [illegible] game.

Sing Deeds of Light Tenders.

The hardships endured by lightkeepers have inspired the pens of some of our best writers. Robert Louis Stevenson, in sketching the life of his grandfather, Robert Stevenson, a distinguished Scotch lighthouse engineer, gives some entertaining pen pictures of their lot.

The first lighthousekeeper in this country, George Worthylake, at Boston light, whose first year's salary was 50 pounds, was drowned with his wife and daughter on November 3, 1718, and this incident was the inspiration for a ballad, the "Lighthouse Tragedy," written by Benjamin Franklin, then a boy of thirteen. In his autobiography he tells us that his brother induced him to print and sell copies of this ballad on the streets of Boston, and that it "sold wonderfully," the event being recent and "having made a great noise." No copy of this ballad seems to have been preserved, but the author admits it was "wretched stuff."

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

XXIV.—MISSOURI

WHETHER Missouri was actually visited by De Soto at the time of his discovery of the Mississippi is not definitely known. The first authentic exploration of this territory was by the French, Joliet and Father Marquette in 1673. French settlers gradually located in Missouri, in 1764 St. Louis being settled. This was one year after Spain acquired from France the Louisiana Territory of which Missouri was a part.

Colonization greatly increased after the ordinance of 1787, [illegible] slavery from the Northwest territory, as this naturally deflected many to the territory west of the Mississippi who otherwise would have settled in the north. The slavery question continued to hold the stage in Missouri history. After the Louisiana Purchase in 1803 added this vast western area to the United States, emigration increased to such an extent that in 1829 Missouri formed a state government and applied for admission to the Union. Bitter antagonism immediately arose in congress against the addition of another slave state. On the other hand the slavery adherents pointed out that Maine had just been taken into the Union as a free state and one state would therefore balance the other. A final settlement was made by the famous Missouri compromise, which accepted Missouri as a slave state but prohibited slavery in the rest of the territory north of a line extending from the southern boundary of Missouri to the Rocky Mountains. Indeed, it was this agitation which, temporarily smothered at that time, burst forth in the Civil war.

Missouri is in the forefront of the important states in national politics as it has eighteen electoral votes for president. Its area is 69,420 square miles.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT NO 2.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate

Pursuant to Resolution No. 113 of the Board of Trustees of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea duly passed and adopted May 16th, 1922:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that default having been made in the payment of the assessments of the several sums due, upon the real property hereinafter described, and assessed thereon for the cost and expenses of doing the following work and making the following improvement, in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, County of Monterey, State of California, to-wit:

1. That Ocean Avenue, between the West line of Junipero Avenue and the West line of San Antonio Avenue, shall be graded, and paved for the full width thereof, exclusive of sidewalks and park spaces; said pavement to consist of 5 inches Hydraulic Cement Concrete.

2. The park spaces on Ocean Avenue between Junipero Avenue and Monte Verde Street, shall be graded, so as to present an even slope between the two pavements.

3. The park spaces on Ocean Avenue between Monte Verde Street and San Antonio Avenue, shall be graded, a width, sufficient to make the height of said park spaces where they abut the pavement, the same as the heighth of the pavement, and to have a gradual slope away from said pavement. All to be done to the lines and grades shown on that certain grade map for said street map in the office of the City Clerk of said city on February 1st, 1921.

4. For the drainage of said Ocean Avenue, there shall be constructed therein a storm sewer, with the necessary catch-basins and lateral pipe, from Dolores Street to Carmel Bay.

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of the power vested in me by the provisions of Section 12 of an act entitled "An act to provide for local improvements upon streets, lanes, alleys, courts, places and sidewalks, and for the construction of sewers within municipalities, such act to be known as 'The Local Improvement Act of 1901'", as amended, I will, at public auction, on the 19th day of June, 1922, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., of said day, at my office in the city hall on the north side of Ocean Avenue, in said municipality, sell the following described lots, pieces or parcels of land, the assessments against which, shall not have been paid, or against which agreements and waivers shall not have been executed, the smallest amount of each of said lots, pieces or parcels of land as shall be necessary to realize the amount assessed against the same, together with the penalty of twenty-five per cent and interest, in the order of their numbers on the map hereinafter referred to, as provided for in said section of said act:

That the following is a description of said lots and lands all of which are within said municipality, and within the district of lands shown upon the map of said Local Improvement District No. 2, on file in my office in said municipality, and each of which is given a red ink number on said map and on a list on file in my office reference being hereby made to said map and list for a particular description on each of said lots and lands.

The following are the red ink numbers shown on said map and list in the order of their numbers thereon, the names of the owners of the property, if known, otherwise designating them as unknown, the amounts of the assessments, the amounts of the penalties, the amounts of interest due and the total amount due on each such lot or subdivision of land for assessment, penalty and interest.

The Year

The Last Trail

If it is written, friend, that I shall ever
Shake off the wanderlust and settle down,
(Seeing myself more human and less clever)
I shall not want it from Carmel town;
There—let me take root where the trees are tall
And grow away from world unrest and all.

Where wood lanes wind about through musky glade
Of live oak arches hung with Spanish moss,
And drowse by snug-put cottages, and fade
At the hill's foot, where white dunes drift across;
Where sifted sun-gold stripes the forest floor,
And all night the strong sea booms along the shore.

Deep in the pines on a hill that overlooks
The bay, I'd build a home, and there regain
What I have lost in dallying with books
That lead me nowhere and make nothing plain,—
Somehow I think the trees might teach me calm,
Then there's the mountains and the seawind's balm.

You know, friend, I've been from coast to coast
Followed a fool's trail—never satisfied—
The great things just beyond allured me most,
And I missed the good that lay on either side,
But since I looked down on the wonderful shingle
Below Carmel—my purpose has been single.

The roads gold for me has turned to ashes—
I want a small garden and a peaceful hearth
Near old Point Lobos where the sea glass smashes,
And the clear hills where the view's half round the earth
—the host of dream, and leave no trace,
Quit roaming and die in the world with grace.

CHARLES COOK.

Spaghetti in Long Strings

A large number of David Alberto's friends met at his studio last Friday evening in honor of his guests, Edward Frank Squadrille and Finn Haakon Frolich. If Mr. Squadrille enjoys distinction as an art critic, he should be no less renowned for his skill at cookery. Many who were there will not soon forget the tempting dinner he prepared and served. There were many also who will long remember the musical program which was given. Janie Johnston and Dorothy Vedder Wegg gave some piano solos, and then Frederick MacMurray very generously played for about half an hour on his viola, after which Alberto gave some delightful numbers on the piano. A number of those present stated that they had never heard Alberto play so brilliantly.

Verdict For the Defendant

The trial of the suit of F. A. Wermuth against Mrs. L. A. Shipley, resulted in a victory for the lady when it came to a close in the superior court last Friday. Wermuth sought reimbursement for damages done his automobile and for loss of use during repairs, alleging that Mrs. Shipley, without official consent, had caused a trench to be dug partly across a certain street in Carmel, and that on a dark wintry night he met with disaster when attempting to cross it.

The damage demanded was not large. After hearing the evidence Judge Bardin decided Wermuth was not entitled to recover, ordering judgment for the defendant. Wermuth was given judgment in the Justice's Court.

NEAR EAST BUNDLE DAY

Carmelites, bring your cast off clothing to the Methodist Church tomorrow (Friday) all day. It is such a little thing for an American to dig those cast-off garments out of the clothes box and send them to the Bundle Station, but to at least one and perhaps several human beings in that far-off land, it may mean the difference between life, hope, strength—and almost certain death.

The kinds of clothing needed are: coats, dresses, sweaters, skirts, blankets, petticoats, overcoats, wool shirts, heavy hose, heavy wrappers, woolen gloves and mittens, boots and shoes, felt slippers, shopworn garments, children's clothes of every sort, sheets for bandages.

New cloth by the piece and new garments are greatly desired. Sewing by women's societies or other organizations in America is not encouraged as it is much better to send the cloth to the Near East to be made into garments, thus giving employment to otherwise unemployed refugees.

AS TYPE OF MONOTHEISM

Melchizedek So Figures in Pages o Scripture and as Character in Legends.

Melchizedek is a vague characte occasionally mentioned in the Scrip tures, whose name means "king o righteousness." The most definit references to him indicate that he wa king of Salem, and priest of Jehoval in the time of Abraham, uniting th royal with the priestly dignity, an so becoming a welcome type for th ancient writers.

Later on his name seems to hav become more or less legendary, an was used in a figurative sense as "a priest forever after the order o Melchizedek," and he is placed in th same category as the Messiah, Him self, apparently as a type of ancien monotheism. Still later he become identified with Shem, the son of Noah and the ancestor of Abraham, and i the subject of an elaborate story in th Egyptian book of Adam and Eve. I this story he is represented as having been chosen of God "from all generations of men," to stand by the body of Adam after it had been brought back to Jerusalem. He is supposed to have remained with Adam's body under the protection of an angel until he encountered Abraham. He is one of the four mentioned in Holy Writ as "without father and without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but made like unto the son of God abiding forever."

WOMAN AND HER SECRETS

Admitting That She Keeps Them Well, Writer Wonders If She Has Any to Reveal.

Heaven knows there is little novelty about woman. Adam was the only man to whom she was something new. Her "elemental inconsistencies" have lent color to every page of the world's history, and she has shown no disposition to conceal them. "Woman does not betray her secret," wrote Immanuel Kant, ponderously, and with that truly German air of providing food for thought. Just what he expected her to betray, just what anybody expects her to betray, has never been made manifest. The cat is the only one of God's creatures that suggests reserve and perhaps secrecy. I have sometimes thought that half-shut eyes and the immobility of relaxed nerves may be responsible for the suggestion, and that this self-contained little beast is less mysterious than it looks. Woman does not even look mysterious, save in the veiled East. In the West all her efforts tend to revelation. Her secret is as easily kept as are the secrets of the cat and of the Free Masons, and for the same reason. The only thing she does not tell is how she is going to vote. This makes her interesting to the politicians, if not to the world at large. The basic principles of party politics have not taken firm hold of her intelligence. By-paths and side issues seduce her from the main traveled roads over which the male voter sturdily trudges.

French "Convulsionnaires."

The Convulsionnaires were a curious group who flourished in France in the early part of the Eighteenth century. They were in the habit of meeting in St. Medard's churchyard, in the suburbs of Paris, in which was located the tomb of Abbe Francois de Paris, where countless miracles were alleged to have been performed. The members of the sect threw themselves into the most violent contortions, rolled on the ground, imitated birds and animals and fishes, and when entirely exhausted fainted or went into [illegible]

At length Louis XV issued an order against them, ordering them to be imprisoned if found "carrying on" in this fashion. But even with these strict regulations against them it was difficult to stamp out the fervor entirely for a great many years.

Word "Bum" Has Dignified History.

The word "bum," which is considered by nearly everyone as a pure Americanism of the most vulgar sort, has in reality a very dignified history. It was first used in England more than two centuries ago in the form of "bummer." A bummer was a man who peddled fish outside the regular markets and these persons were, of course, looked down upon and held in contempt by the regular dealers. The word finally gained a general significance and came to mean any dishonest person or one of irregular habits. It appears in the English market by-laws of the Seventeenth century in the form of "Bummaree."

The word appeared in the United States during the gold days in California and gradually made its way east.

Pithy Paragraphs.

The world condemns a woman with great severity when she goes wrong. Some few centuries later a group of men played the same cards in the same way for the life of the world's best man, and not one of their names is remembered. Jezebel can never be forgotten. She was a woman.—James W. Valentyne.

The preacher who is sensational in the sense of utilizing methods or matter the main object of which is to attract may gain attention, but will rarely win a heart, and, after all, heart culture, properly understood, which, according to Proverbs, "determines the issues of life," is the fundamental and finest service of a church.—Alexander Lyons.

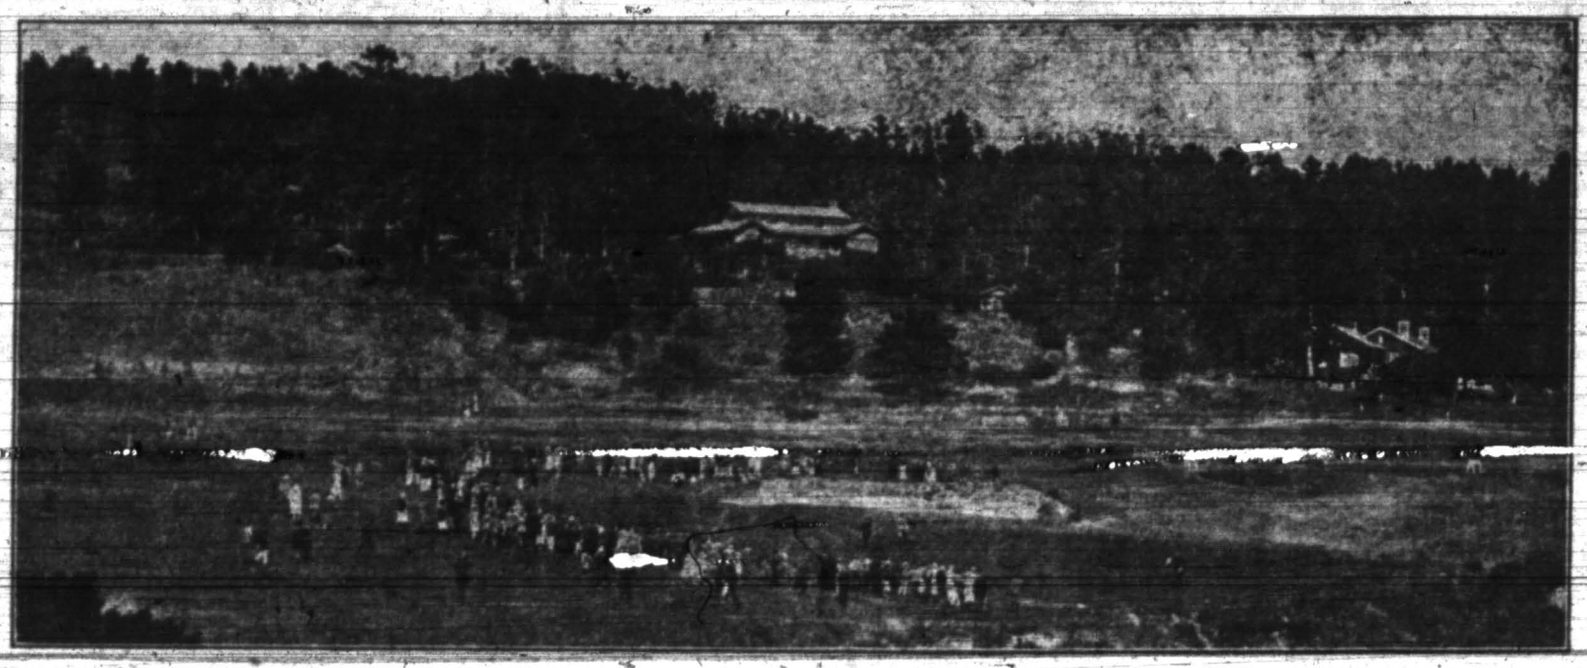
Carmel's Latest Scenic Addition

Beautiful "Carmel Woods" 125-Acre Tract Under Improvement by Del Monte Properties Co.



Golf Course Between Carmel and Pebble Beach, near "Carmel Woods"

The announcement in this issue by the Del Monte Properties Company that a subdivision of twenty-five acres known as Carmel Woods is about to be opened up for home-sites, serves to remind us that we are celebrating this week the foundation of the first Mission San Carlos Borromeo.

It is an interesting coincidence that news so important to the future of the Monterey Peninsula should be published shortly after the anniversary of the day that saw this whole region opened up to civilization and religion.

Mission San Carlos Borromeo was founded on June 3, 1770, by Padre Junipero Serra. The first site was on the shore of Monterey bay, near the spot where Vizcaino had landed in 1602, and where the Carmelite friars from whom the Carmel river took its name, celebrated religious services "in the shadow of a large oak, some of whose branches reached the water."

Don Gaspar De Portola who had explored the site a year before, took formal possession of the port on this epochal June 3, 1770, and was present at the founding of the Mission. It was a solemn, and, at the same time, a gala occasion. A festive dinner was served on the beach, and in the words of Padre Serra himself, there was "much thunder of powder both on land and from the ship."

Padre Serra soon became dissatisfied with this first site of the Mission, and obtained permission to remove to the valley of the Carmel river about a league distant across the peninsula. The removal began in June of 1771, and Padre Serra who had meanwhile founded the Mission San Antonio de Padua, took up his abode at Carmel in August of that year. It was ever afterwards his home, and he died there August 28, 1784.

The first stone of the present Carmel Mission was laid July 7, 1793. This is the most beautiful and most famous of all the Missions of California. Painters, etchers, poets, historians and novelists innumerable have "spelled" its charms, its history, and its beautiful legends.

Carmel-by-the-Sea owes its origin to the travelers who were first attracted to the Mission and soon discovered the wonderful advantages of the region nearby. From a little settlement Carmel-by-the-Sea grew into a flourishing community that made an irresistible appeal to artists and literary folks. At the present time it has exhausted its city limits, so steady has been the influx of new residents.

Hence the importance of the announcement that the Del Monte Properties Company is about to open up a subdivision of twenty-five acres on the northerly side of the city. The plans have been drawn in cooperation with the Carmel city trustees and city planning commission, and have been executed by Mark Daniels, the well known landscape engineer. Home sites will take every advantage of the beautifully wooded region which will be traversed by gravel roads winding through the pines and oaks. It is announced that water and electricity will be brought on every lot.

Byington Ford, manager of the subdivision, states that there will be elaborate plans for making the opening day of the sale memorable.

The Pine Cone is read by 2000 persons every week.

Real Home Industry

One of the most used expressions is "Home Industry." What does it mean? Listen to this:

In 1904 J. W. Hand took over the agency of the Del Monte Laundry for Carmel. The residents then depended, like the pioneers of '49, upon Chinamen to do their wash. Joe Hand looked 'way ahead. He gave service—first by freight wagon, one-horse delivery wagon and two-horse vehicle, then by automobile—until he was finally able to give a regular CITY LAUNDRY SERVICE.

What about this for Home Industry?

Meanwhile, the laundry itself grew with the spirit of the agents. It does not and never has, failed to support them with good, first-class work, immediate attention to the wants of the patrons and quick adjustment of all righteous claims.

Joseph J. Mora and family motored to San Jose last Friday, returning to Carmel Sunday. They attended "Pagliacci," given at Stanford University stadium Saturday night. Mr. Mora is loud in his praises of the production. The director was the famous Maestro Gaetano Merola, the accompanist of Giovanni Martinelli, the world's second Caruso. The opera was sung by Metropolitan stars, with a local chorus. Other operas planned for the next few weeks are Carmen and Faust.

Active work on the restoration of the Mission Carmelo has begun, the work at present centering on the old memorial chapel, where the sarcophagus now being sculptured by Joseph J. Mora is to be installed. Mr. Mora's work is now coming along rapidly. The four life sized figures are completed, as well as much of the smaller detail work.

Konrad Bercovici, short story and scenario writer, has arrived in Carmel with his family, with the intention of spending the summer.

Some of his late stories are "Tanasi" in June Century, and "The Death of Murdo" in Pictorial for July. Lasky is now producing "When a Man Rules," from a story in Pictorial Review for May. Mr. Bercovici is from New York. He has come to Carmel largely to meet Fred Bechdolt, with whom he has been in correspondence for five years, but whom he has never met. Mr. Bercovici intends to spend much time writing while here.

Susan Mott Porter is leaving for a two weeks' trip to San Francisco and other parts of the state. She has made tentative plans for a camping trip on the eastern slope of the Sierras. If the plan develops, Fernand Lundgren, the famous desert painter, will be in the party. Lundgren is familiar with the life, art and rituals of the Indians, having been initiated into the Hopi Tribe some time ago.

Henry Cowell, our young Carmel-California composer-pianist, recently gave a recital of his own compositions in St. Mark's hall, New York City. Pitts Sanborn of the Globe speaks very highly of Mr. Cowell saying that he is a "musician of unusually interesting quality—a thinker and a theorist on the future of the tonal art, as well as a composer of an intriguing talent." He also spoke of Cowell's "uncanny power of summoning color from the piano."

An interesting contest in the literary world has been launched by the Harper's Publishing Co. The prize of $2000 is offered for the best novel submitted between June 1, this year, and March 1, 1923, with a minimum of 30,000 words. The conditions of the offer are that the contestants be American citizens and must not have published a novel in book form prior to the beginning of the world war.

The judges of the contest are Jesse Lynch Williams, president of the Authors' League of America; Henry Seidel Candy, editor of the New York Evening Post Literary Review, and Carl Van Doren, author of "The American Novel." Williams is the brother of Susan Mott Porter of this city.

Stainless Iron Held Great Invention.

Stainless iron, which is already on the market in the form of golf clubs, cutlery, small metal parts, shop fittings, sheets for turbine parts, and for other machinery parts specially liable to corrosion through exposure, is steadily being made cheaper by the manufacturers in Sheffield. Its high cost at present is the chief obstacle to its general use. When people recognize its intrinsic value, stainless iron will be used very extensively, says a steel maker. At present the development is in its infancy, and the closest investigation is necessary before unqualified claims can be made or before the discovery can be fully exploited. Stainless iron was regarded as one of the most important metallurgical developments of 1921. A great future is prophesied for it in engineering construction. It is expected that eventually it will replace copper, brass, and nickel in the manufacture of a wide variety of articles.

Real Estate and Building Activities

During the last week much real estate has changed hands. Ray De Yoe reports the following sales for the Carmel Realty Company:

Mrs. Ada Tinker, Mrs. J. V. Cannon and Miss Anna McDiarmid, Berkeley ladies, have bought adjoining home sites on North San Carlos, just opposite the Berkeley Outdoor School. Three lots on the corner of Dolores and Thirteenth have just been bought by Miss Claribel Haydock. The lot just north of the Episcopal Church has been bought by the church people from Mrs. Crow of Santa Barbara. Mrs. Emma Gray's house on North Camino Real has been sold to Mrs. Anne Scott Block of Los Angeles. To Mrs. Mary Torras has gone four lots on San Carlos just north of Mr. Hand's residence. Mrs. Mary C. Easton of Berkeley, has bought two lots on the corner of Third and Lincoln and two on the corner of Third and Monte Verde. W. P. Netherton of Santa Cruz has sold to A. P. Beck of Watsonville, 60x100 feet on Camino Real near 2nd Avenue.

Reverend Father Mestres of Carmel Mission Church, has purchased ten lots in old Carmel City. They are so heavily wooded that many of the trees must be sacrificed. Those that come down are to be used in the reconstruction of the Mission.

From Calvin C. Hogle come reports of the following sales: Two lots on Lincoln and Fifth to Manuel Pereira; two lots on Seventh and Dolores to Miss Emma L. Williams; four lots on Mission and Tenth to Fannie B. Baldwin of Carmel Highlands. Professor Warren Thompson Clarke of the U. C., has bought through Mr. Hogle, Percy Parkes' house on Dolores near Santa Lucia.

Publicity.

Alderman John Coughlin of Chicago was cornered the other day by some younger members of the city council who asked him how he had retained his seat in the council for over thirty years. "Boys," said the veteran, "we all like to have nice things said about us in the papers, but, whether it's nice or not, have them say something and say it often!"

ROMAN WOMAN, FIRST NURSE

On Record in History as Establishing Convalescent Home for the Poor A. D. 380.

The word "nurse" is derived from the Latin, and means "to nourish."

There is no reference to a sick nurse in the Bible, although numerous children's nurses are mentioned.

Fabiola, the first nurse recorded in history, was a Roman woman who established a hospital and convalescent home for the poor after her conversion to Christianity, about A. D. 380. She inaugurated a society of rich women, and had them trained as sick nurses.

Nurses, who are addressed as "sister" on account of the old religious traditions associated with their work, lost their professional dignity in 1544, when twelve women were engaged at St. Bartholomew's hospital, London, to nurse the sick and perform menial work.

From that time nurses were untrained, until the doctors at the New York hospital began to lecture them on "scientific cleanness" in 1790.

Fliedner, at Kaiserwerth, Germany, opened the first scientific training school for nurses in 1836. Florence Nightingale was trained at his establishment, and introduced his methods into England.

COULD NOT FORGET COURTESY

Japanese, Though Inebriated, Obeyed at Once the Inborn Politeness of His Race.

It was on the road to Kamakura on a very pleasant morning, that we were favored with an unusual illustration of native politeness. Courtesy is an integer of Japanese character, and though it often confuses the outlander beyond understanding, particularly in business transactions, it is nevertheless a perpetual joy to him. The coolie, the room boy, has quite Chesterfieldian manners in reserve for any occasion.

Such a coolie it was who sprawled in a sake stupor fair in the middle of the narrow roadway, with the car rushing down upon him. At night he would have been maimed or killed before the brakes could be applied. As it was, the nonchalant chauffeur halted with the tires almost at the heels of the slumberer. Stepping from the car, he thrust his foot in the ribs of the coolie, without heat or haste, and rolled him from the way. At this the drunken one propped himself on a wavering elbow, took in the situation and essayed a most amazing recovery. He rose and stood beside the car to doff his hat almost to the ground, and very clearly, though in Japanese, tendered a gentleman's apology for the inconvenience he had caused the travelers.—Ben Hur Lampman in the Portland Oregonian.

Magician.

Kellar, magician, died at the age of seventy-three. In his prime he was the greatest sorcerer among the billion and a half people living on earth.

From his life we learn this:

People who saw Kellar marveled at his magic. Yet they knew that 'it's all a trick."

Only a few centuries ago—a short period in the history of man—magicians were taken seriously, looked on as supernatural.

Science and education rapidly are eliminating man's gullibility, the basis of many forms of slavery.

Secret of Eskimo Health.

The Eskimos are naturally one of the healthiest peoples in the world. The School of Hygiene of the Johns Hopkins university will send out an expedition to study dietetics and nutrition among the Eskimos.

ETCHING MACHINE INSTALLED

Inauguration of Carmel's new etching press, purchased through the initiative of the Arts and Crafts, by subscription from its members and from citizens of Carmel, will take place at Arts and Crafts hall Thursday evening, June 15, at 8:15 o'clock.

Mary J. Coulter, formerly curator of prints at the Chicago Art institute, will give her talk, "The History of Etchings and Engravings," with slides of important specimens of this work from its inception to the present day.

Ralph M. Pearson, from Taos, N. M., who recently prepared the Carmel artists for use of the press, by his class in etching, will "pull" two prints, one good one and one poor one, to demonstrate the difference in prints.

On the walls will be hung a loan collection of prints, owned by citizens of Carmel and neighboring towns. It is expected that this will be a good showing, and anyone who owns a print or prints, or knows of any available ones, and desires to lend them for the occasion, is asked to leave them at Cabbages and Kings on or before Wednesday, June 14.

Tickets may be had at the same place.

ANTS OVERRUN LOVELY ISLE

Pests From Argentina Have Completely Wiped Out Bird Life in Madeira —Spread Plant Disease.

L. R. Lefroy, lecturing at the British Royal institute the other day, mentioned that the Argentine ant has spread over half the world since 1897.

He gave an example of the mischief wrought by the ant in the fact that it has completely wiped out the birds of Madeira by eating their nestlings.

Only those who have lived in a country overrun by ants know the full horror of it.

The housekeeper must reckon, as a necessity of annual expenditure, carbolic acid, petroleum and other protectives against the all-pervading insects.

Every table, every bed, must stand with its legs in little tins of petroleum, or the ants will swarm up.

Mothers anxiously visit the cradles of their babies to see that no bedclothes are touching the floor, or a black string of ants will be seen hurrying up the "bridge" at once.

You can never leave any article of food unprotected anywhere in Madeira, or it would be swarming with ants in a few minutes.

The ants have not only introduced into Madeira the greenfly, which all the world knows they "milk" like cows, but they have also brought with them the horrible plant diseases of scale and black rust.

These have killed off many orange and coffee trees, and the pomegranate has completely disappeared from the island.

But even this devastating insect has one good quality. The ant is an excellent scavenger.

Fig Blossoms Inside Its Own Fruit.

A peculiarity of the fig is that it produces its fruit first and blossoms inside the fruit, or so nearly so that no flower is perceptible to an ordinary observer.

Because of the peculiar structure of the fig fruit the process of pollination cannot be accomplished either by the wind or by ordinary insects. A peculiar hymen-opterous insect is an inhabitant of the wild figs in their native countries and also visits the cultivated varieties. It is to this insect alone that the pollination of the cultivated sorts is due. Smyrna fig culture would be an impossibility without this insect.

What Others Think

"WITH MALICE TOWARD NONE, WITH CHARITY FOR ALL • • •"

The Pine Cone solicits articles or communications on constructive public improvement. We desire to give the fullest publicity to both sides of any controversy that may arise. We feel that the people of Carmel can and will discuss fairly and openly, without rancor or bitterness, matters pertaining to the collective life of Carmel. In order to promote a friendly constructive effort, we ask that all contributions be signed. Communications sent anonymously or signed with a fictitious name will not be published.

THEY LIKED IT

Carmel, June 1, 1922.

Editor Pine Cone:

A number of Carmel citizens, realizing the value of Chairman W. L. Maxwell's communication to your paper with reference to the status of the city's affairs, desire herewith to express our appreciation of the same, and hope we may have additional similar expressions from time to time.

Columbia Park Boys to Camp at Pacific Grove

The Columbia Park Boys Club of San Francisco has decided to again pitch its summer camp at Pacific Grove. The site has been selected in the woods on the property of the Del Monte Properties Company close by the sandy beaches which will be ideal in every way for the boys to engage in their sports, recreation, and training.

The party of boys, running in age from 8 to 14, will number fifty, and will arrive at the camp on June 18. They will remain for five weeks and will entertain Carmel, Del Monte, and Pacific Grove with shows, and their sports.

Announcing Carmel Woods

152 years ago (June 3, 1770) Padre Junipero Serra founded the first Carmel Mission.

This week, therefore, is appropriate for an announcement of prime importance to all residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea and the Monterey Peninsula.

Acting in co-operation with the Trustees and the Planning Commission of Carmel-by-the-Sea, the Del Monte Properties Company announces a new Carmel subdivision.

This subdivision, immediately adjoining the northerly city limits of Carmel-by-the-Sea, has been named CARMEL WOODS.

CARMEL WOODS is designed to give Carmel-by-the-Sea that room for expansion which is so imperative a need of the thriving community.

It speaks volumes for Carmel's growth that CARMEL WOODS makes the ninth addition to the city limits in the space of a few years.

Embracing 25 acres of the choicest residence property, CARMEL WOODS will appeal irresistibly to those who have sought in vain to purchase home-sites in Carmel-by-the-Sea where developed property is so attractive and desirable that it rarely changes ownership.

CARMEL WOODS is a Carmel subdivision for Carmelites who do not own their own homes, and for the ever-increasing number of families eager to live in this most favored region.

Carmel ideals as well as Carmel needs have been carefully consulted in subdividing CARMEL WOODS.

Byington Ford, the manager of the subdivision, has taken counsel with the Carmel Trustees and the Carmel Planning Commission, with the result that the plans will not only respect but serve the high artistic ideals for which Carmel is famous.

Following this sympathetic co-operation, the plans for CARMEL WOODS were made by Mark Daniels, the distinguished landscape engineer who laid out Pebble Beach.

Surfaced and graveled roads twenty feet wide will wind through the magnificent pines and oaks, and building sites will take every advantage of the superb natural contours. Water and electricity will be brought to every lot.

Size and price of home-sites in CARMEL WOODS, and date of the opening sale will be announced shortly.

Carmel has grown to such proportions that expansion is urgently demanded. But Carmel must grow the way Carmelites want it to grow, else this nationally famous community will forfeit its charm.

The ideals of those who have the highest interests of Carmel at heart will be expressed in CARMEL WOODS.

Old-Time Stampede Is Barely Averted

It was only by quick and "cold logic" that Carmel was saved from becoming "The Deserted Village" this week. Talk about the Days of '49! Packs were packed, food was prepared, the family pick and shovel were unearthed, and all the available Lizzies were hired—all ready for the rush to the gold mines reported to have been discovered in the hills south of Carmel by George Schweninger and Bill Machado.

A Pine Cone reporter spent half a day running down the story. It was finally learned that the young men had returned to their work in the lumber camp in Toulumne county and that the only foundation for the rumor was a question asked them when they lately returned from a fishing trip. Here 'tis:

"Where have you been?" asked a curious one. "Digging gold," was the reply.

Stiff Opposition for Taylor

Political affairs in Monterey County warmed up considerably when Andrew Church, one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of this section tossed his figurative kelly into the equally figurative squared circle, as a candidate for the office of county treasurer. He will oppose the present incumbent.

Mr. Church has been a resident of Monterey County since 1883. In that time he has attained a wide acquaintance, and numbers his friends by those who know him. For the past five years Mr. Church has been in the employ of the Spreckels Sugar Co., in the capacity of field man. He recently resigned this place and, to meet the demand made upon him by his friends, consented to become a candidate for treasurer.

Twisted, but Meant Well.

An English newspaper is printing choice bits of broken English as overheard by its readers. Two examples follow, which are considered the most amusing: A coffee room waiter who said he was a Swiss, replying to a guest ordering breakfast:

"Tongue iss no more, schickken never vos! How you like your eggs voilt, tight or loose?"

The other concerns an enraged Portuguese who turned upon his opponent and spat out:

"If I did know ze English for ze box, I would blow your nose, by damn, I am!"

Memory of Lower Animals.

Elephants and apes have often surprised their keepers by the strength of their memory. It is a saying among trainers that elephants and tigers never forget an injury; that they may retaliate even years afterward.

That the shark has a memory has been proved many times, not only by his detection of the shark-hunters' schemes, but by his attention to certain ships from which he has received special food favors.

Vagrant Impressions of The Pine Nut

The thrill that comes but once a week is the Movie and I can tell you that we're strictly up-to-date. We get everything from Charley Chaplin and his mustache to the sinuous wrigglings of Nazimova.

We enter and take our seats as far in the back of the room as we can, so as to be able to steer clear of the marbles, ancient eggs and other articles of warfare with which the children occupying the first two or three rows sometimes arm themselves. If we get there an hour early, we may be in time to watch the Movie fans arrive.

Dear old Sam Powers and his wife are [illegible] They are regular customers. The music wouldn't dare to start until they were in their places in the front of that right section of seats. Then Mrs. Larouette goes down the other side of the hall and selects an aisle seat. Dr. Beck and his wife choose their places pretty well in the back and a woman with a baby in arms takes the other side of the room and Bill Overstreet gets pretty well in the middle of the house. By this time the place is fairly well balanced and the house fills up pretty fast. Quite a buzz of conversation begins. Bill takes out the Morning Chronicle, and gets busy. He looks bored and superior and reads with avidity. I'll say Bill is the original little time-saver. I'll bet he writes his editorials at the breakfast table.

People get up and go around the hall visiting with each other. They plan their social engagements for the next week, hold committee meetings in the aisles and some of the ladies take out their knitting and go to work industriously. They've lived here so long that they don't even know that the war is over—but then, of course there may always be another one, either here or abroad.

Miss McLean starts in on the piano. The buzzing grows louder. Why is it that at any place of amusement, the music provided by the management is considered merely an accompaniment to the conversation?

We have some strangers to Carmel in our party. They crane their necks as we point out the celebrities. "There's so-and-so, one of our greatest writers. Last year she wrote one of the world's "best sellers". See! She's right through there behind that girl with the blue hat. She brings her notebook all the time, probably getting atmosphere for a new story," or it might be:

"Just look at ————. He's a wonderful artist. Packs his sketch-book and umbrella with him everywhere so whenever he gets an inspiration he can dash it down." Our guests look impressed—somewhat awed, and they crane a little more to see if they can see that umbrella.

The tourists behind me who have drifted in just because they saw the bright lights, try to have everybody around them understand that they're from the city and are accustomed to something different. They're afraid we won't get it unless they make it plain, so, in loud and nasal accents they talk about "being at the Granada last week", and how "Mary begins to look real old since she married Doug". They keep this up at intervals all evening. Sometimes I put on my specs and try to look like a writer and "glare" them down, but I'm not often successful. They just giggle and make faces at me.

When the lights go out and the program begins, everyone sits back and looks contented. During the advertising features, there are sometimes spontaneous bits of applause. Last Saturday night, when Fred Leidig's wood and coal sign was shown, there was a wild round of hand clapping. I wasn't quite able to determine whether it was due to Fred's popularity or whether it carried with it a suggestion of warmth which we were all longing for, especially those of us who sat next to the door.

Now comes the pictures of the Far East and the starving babies, ending with "America". If we could only have our own national air played, we would all pop right up to our feet, but we hate to stand up to the tune of "God Save the King", and we hate to be [illegible] out as unpatriotic Americans when we sit still, so when two or three get up with a do-or-die expression on their faces, the rest of us straggle along and all join lustily in the singing, feeling glad that the words are at least American.

The feature begins. When the small fry on the front seats get tired they indulge in a game of marbles, and the Marshal [illegible] down the aisle in an investigating turn of mind. He looks severely at each child as he passes and the noise ceases. As he passes around front and starts up the other aisle, some kid shoots another marble from God knows where, but the Marshal has done his duty and returns to his post near the door. By and by a scuffling starts down in the front and Argyll Campbell thinks he recognizes a particular brand of it that he has heard under his own dining-room table many times, so he marches down and takes Johnny by the ear and leads him outside and out under the nearest tree, and—but why dwell on the sad things of Life. The baby across the aisle cries a while, an old gentleman near me snores, and the pianist plays a gentle lullaby when the villain is meeting his tragic end.

Of course the usual pests that can be found in every moving picture show in the world are out in full force. There is the person who has seen the picture before or who has read the book, who insists in teling you what is coming, or the one who reads the captions out loud, or asks you what it all means. Your nearest neighbor is apt to indulge in loud stage whispers, sometimes even in animated argument as to the propaganda that is being shown. Then the large fat woman in front of you wiggles and turns and twists so that you can't see half of the picture, and you fold up your coat and sit on it to be taller, and take your grouch out on the people behind you.

Anyway, we all have a perfectly good time and as we go out we think with sorrow of having to wait a whole week for another Saturday night.

Just before going to press, an important announcement has come in to the effect that hereafter there will be three movies a week instead of one.

REVIEW OF BOOKS IN CARMEL LIBRARY

By Ann Burroughs

MR. GALSWORTHY'S TRILOGY

The Forsyte Saga which consists mainly of the three novels, "A Man of Property", "In Chancery", and "To Let" is Mr. Galsworthy's most serious contribution to literature—begun nobly but ended lamely.

Several years ago we will remember that "A Man of Property" startled and delighted us with its clear and effective portrayal of smug, well-to-do, middle class England. The novel drew a vigorous, penetrating, and artistic picture of the powerful, narrow bourgeoisie who ruled commercial England. The only emphatically charming people of the type family of Forsyte were [illegible] his disgrace but well being revered against Forsytism and the beautiful Irene who tragically married one of the most successful and typical Forsytes.

The narrative thread through the three volumes concerns itself with the revolt of Irene from her Forsyte husband's unattractive possessiveness, through a liason which ends with the death of her lover, through many years of dignified loneliness which is troubled by the demands of her husband for a renewal of his possession, to the divorce of Irene and her marriage with the Forsyte rebel, the subsequent marriage of her former husband, and an unhappy love affair between the son and daughter of these second marriages. The third volume [illegible] second is mere claptrap, tired, no doubt, from the Cosmopolitan habit developed in Mr. Galsworthy since the high conception and execution of the first volume. We may trust that the inferior quality of the last two volumes will serve a purpose in warning future successful novelists against cheap, though highly paid writing.

ROMAIN ROLLAND

The most charming romance that I have read for some time is "Colas Breugnon, Burgundian" of Romain Rolland. Colas was a sixteenth century French peasant, born to poverty, unsuccessful in his wooing and married to a shrewish wife, a financial failure, the father of four sons none of whom he could recognize as socially or spiritually his kin, yet even in the consciousness of his perhaps none too uncommon though overwhelming misfortunes, one of the most joyous of men. He found happiness of the degree that the Roman emperor Diocletian had found when he refused to reassume the responsibilities of empire which he had voluntarily relinquished remarking that if his solicitor knew what joy he took in the grand cabbages he was raising he wouldn't ask him to abandon so great a pleasure.

Colas knew the joy of leisure and rich relaxation, he knew lovely and expressive creation (he was a woodcarver), he knew the beauty of mornings and evenings in meadows and by streams, he knew the warm joy of comradeship, the contenting pleasure of neighborliness, the secret glow of gunning which hurts no one, the generous urge which makes a light burden of possession. He was a merry, witty, affectionate mediaeval Burgundian peasant as choice and as sparkling as the Burgundian wine of which he partook freely.

Each chapter of the volume details an important incident of his life: a day of community merry making, a siege of the city, a plague, a visit in his old age to the women he had always desired, his youthful discovery of Plutarch as he lay in bed with a broken ankle. The novel is one of rare loveliness and delight.

Climax Furniture Store

The Big Store on Franklin street is offering very interesting inducements to home-furnishers.

Particularly in Bedroom Furniture, which is going at 20 to 30 per cent under current prices.

Suites and odd pieces in Ivory and Gray Enamel, Walnut, Maple and Oak—priced lower than at any time during the last eight years.

For instance: An Ivory Dresser (rather small, of course) enameled, on hardwood, at $21.00.

We will have about 200 pieces at these low prices.

It is quite assured that prices are to advance somewhat in all lines of merchandise—which fact increases interest in our offering.

And you'd better annex a few of those Grass Arm Chairs at $4.50 each.

Call anyway. If you don't buy, the Big Store will give you standards for comparison.

Pine Needles

J. B. Stonerod, business manager of the Peninsula Daily Herald paid Carmel a visit last Saturday.

Mrs. George Linsley, daughter of Mrs. Mary Dummage, gave birth to a daughter, in Seattle, on May 29th.

Fred Purner and Byington Ford of the Del Monte Properties Company are frequent visitors here now-a-days. Carmel Woods Tract will soon be placed on the market.

Miss Blanche Tolmie and Dr. Isabel Logie are camping on their lots temporarily and are going soon to start building their studio. They expect to be here for the summer. Miss Talmie took a prominent part in last year's "Countess Cathleen".

A folder containing advance announcement of the "Serra Mission Play" to be given at the Forest Theatre on July 21, 22 and 23, is just off the Pine Cone Press. They will be distributed throughout the state.

Many delegates to the National Realtors' convention, recently held in San Francisco, are drifting into Carmel this week. They recently organized a National Realtors' golf tournament to be held this week at Hotel Del Monte. About one hundred of the party are golf enthusiasts and are spending the week there.

Miss Lillian McCalley is leaving for Los Angeles, where she expects to take a course in Spanish and journalism in the summer school of the University of Southern California.

The Edward Kusters spent four days in San Francisco recently on business connected with the coming Forest Theater production in the way of selection of costumes, lighting equipment, etc.

Elizabeth Gillis has started the foundation of a house on Casanova street between Eleventh and Twelfth. She also has a new car which enjoys the proud sobriquet of "Ruth."

The local postoffice authorities are deluged with demands for mail boxes. They have been obliged to make alterations which will allow 110 new boxes to be placed at the disposal of the public. This is a sure indication of increased population here over last year.

Mrs. E. A. Abbott left this week for Brookline, Mass., to join her twin sister, Mrs. Monroe Longyear. The news of Mr. Longyear's death hastened her departure. Monroe Longyear was an influential man in the Lake Superior country, having large mineral and timber interests. Mrs. Abbott expects to be away about a year. She will remain in Brookline for some time, and later will join her sister, Mrs. William P. Silva, in Europe.

Mrs. Emily Woodworth, aunt of Mrs. T. L. Edler, died at her home in Gonzales last Friday evening, and was buried Sunday.

C. J. Arne, tonsorial artist, has been doing a land office business—so much so that he has brought to town one Paul Mercurio to assist him in his hirsutarium.

The Battleship Pennsylvania, flagship of the Atlantic squadron, and the Mississippi, are expected to anchor in Monterey bay about the ninth of June, to remain three or four days.

George Walker has recently bought "The Pines," which he intends to use for a sanitarium and rest home, principally for men. He is also contemplating the erection of a bungalow on the property this summer.

A jolly party motored down to the Big Sur last Monday, with "Happy" Smith at the wheel and Tilly Polak to open the gates. The balance of the party were A. C. Butcher of Highlands Inn, Misses Sara Huntsman and Sybil Frongner of Berkeley and Catherine Knowlton of Palo Alto, now registered at Pine Inn.

Owen Kay, brother of Mrs. Ray De Yoe, and his friend William Follansbee, were guests of the De Yoes last week end. These young men have a group of claims adjacent to the famous Kelley mines at Randsburg, the yield from which last year was over four million dollars, and the boys' prospects for big results this year are good.

The annual vacation of the Monterey County Superior Court will commence Monday, June 19, and continue until Thursday, July 27, according to an order made by Judge J. A. Bardin.

Berryman Anderson arrived in Carmel from his home in San Rafael last Sunday. He and his family will occupy the Boke house for the month of June. Mr. Anderson's father is president of the Bank of California in San Francisco.
